ch. 13

My greatest challenge has been to change the mindset of people. Mindsets play strange tricks on us. We see things the way our minds have instructed our eyes to see. We think the way our minds have instructed our minds to think. We are familiar with one way of thinking.

Most of it comes during our academic years, during our student years. The teachers we had, the books we read – they made up our mindset, and ever since we are stuck with that. We cannot break through this.

PURPLE WEEK

2009-2010 marked the Purple campaign's inaugural year at Duke. In an effort to make students more socially aware, Purple polled the community to find which social causes they considered to be most important; Human Rights, Educational Inequality, Cancer Awareness, Research and Prevention, Race Relations, and Environmental Sustainability. Each day of Purple Week was designated to one of the five causes. Students wore T-shirts to show their support for the causes. The week culminated in a concert with Mike Posner ('10) as the headliner.

BULL CITY FOOTBALL FEST

In honor of the first football game between Duke and North Carolina Central University, both schools held a celebration for the greater Durham community. As part of an effort to extend beyond the "Duke Bubble," students were bused to the Durham Athletic Park to participate in a pep rally for the Bull City Gridiron Classic that took place on Homecoming Saturday. The event also had carnival games, food vendors, live bands, and performances by student organizations such as DefMo.

START-UP CHALLENGE

The Duke Start-Up Challenge is an entrepreneurship competition that runs the course of the academic year for student-run start-up companies. This year, the challenge was celebrating its 10-year anniversary. The keynote speaker for the finale was Aaron Patzer (Duke '02), who recently sold his start-up, mint.com, for $170 million. This year's winner of the $25,000 grand prize was Wasabi, a revolutionary idea for a sushi fra[illegible]led by three

ELEVATOR PITCH

In the Elevator Pitch Competition (EPC) Finale, 14 finalist teams (out of 72 teams) gave 1 minute presentations about their start-up ideas to a panel of investors, including Bill Maris, co-founder of Google ventures. The competition format was based on the idea of having a chance encounter with a CEO in an elevator, where you have a short amount of time to sell an idea. The Judge's Choice winner was Biogenic Medical Devices and Audience Choice winner was The Progress and Purity Project.

LINDA BURTON, PH.D.
James B. Duke Professor of Sociology

What achievement are you most proud of?
Raising four wonderful, successful children who are caring human beings.

What is your favorite thing to do in Durham?
Go on walking tours.

What is your favorite restaurant in Durham?
Watt's Grocery.

What is the best advice you ever got from a student?
Continue to keep it real!

What is something your students might be surprised to learn about you?
I am an avid game show contestant and have appeared on 'The Price is Right' and 'Dream House!'

The Stones of the House Photo by Fei Lian

What achievement are you most proud of?
Exercising regularly.

What is your favorite thing to do in Durham?
Take a walk in Duke Gardens in the spring.

What is your favorite restaurant in Durham?
Anotherthyme.

What is the best advice you ever got from a student?
To laugh more.

What is something your students might be surprised to learn about you?
I'm a Japanese maples fanatic.

ANITA-YVONNE "A-Y" BRYANT, PH.D.

Assistant Director for Training Programs and Multicultural Services Liaison, Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS)

What achievement are you most proud of?
The personal accomplishment I am most proud of is an ongoing one; parenting and raising my son Isaiah. My proudest professional accomplishment is having the privilege of serving as a consultant to the Center for Race Relations' Common Ground Diversity Retreat. I have served this student organization for seven years and had the opportunity to watch students transform their lives, their campus and their global communities in the spirit of inclusiveness and social justice.

What is your favorite thing to do in Durham?
Since 1994, I have always loved attending the American Dance Festival. Last year was the first time I experienced the ADF at the new Durham Performing Arts Center. It was magnificent.

What is your favorite restaurant in Durham?
I'm not a "foodie" so for special occasions I like the Magnolia Grill. Given that I spend most of my waking hours at Duke, it really is the Loop. It is a place where I can go and like "Cheers", "everybody knows my name". The staff are the warmest kindest group of folks you will ever meet!

What is the best advice you ever got from a student?
Stay real

What is something your students might be surprised to learn about you?
Students might be surprised to learn [illegible] I used to spend my purple [illegible] and [illegible] Band" [illegible]

What achievement are you most proud of?
I have very close relationships with my family including my nieces and nephews, and I am fortunate to have many dear friends from across my life.

What is your favorite thing to do in Durham?
Ride my bike on the American Tobacco Trail and take walks in Duke Gardens.

What is your favorite restaurant in Durham?
Nosh.

What is the best advice you ever got from a student?
When returning papers to students in class to place them directly in the students' hands rather than sliding them across a desk or table, because students could think you were avoiding contact with them just as many people do when someone's skin color is different than their own.

What is something your students might be surprised to learn about you?
I bought my first drum set when I was twelve with money I had earned by babysitting and mowing people's lawns, and I played in a garage band during high school.

JANIE LONG, PH.D.

Director of the Center for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Life and Affiliated Faculty in Sexuality Studies and Women's Studies

DUKES AND DUCHESSES

Student Ambassadors

Dukes and Duchesses is a group of volunteers dedicated to serving as student representatives of Duke University. It was founded on the belief that bringing undergraduates into contact with University affiliates is beneficial to Duke and to the students themselves.

CENTER FOR RACE RELATIONS

he Center for Race Relations
CRR) consists of four departments:
Dialogues, Common Ground, House
Courses, and Students to Unite
Duke (STUD). The CRR received a
Distinguished Leadership and Service
Ward.

Vision
One day, Duke's community will be one of inclusion and respect that recognizes, embraces, and values both our common humanity and differences as individuals, creating a society in which identity is neither constrained nor prescribed by group affiliation.

Mission
As a student-run organization, the CRR acts as an ally for all individuals who are discriminated against and marginalized. We provide a safe space for meaningful exchange among all members of Duke's diverse community through sustained dialogue, academic engagement, social interaction, and experiential learning.
The CRR challenges people to think critically about issues of diversity in an environment open to all perspectives.

FOOTBALL

Coach David Cutcliffe
Record 5 W, 7 L

With another year under Head Coach David Cutcliffe, the Duke football continued the trend set by the previous season of development and improvement. The Blue Devils finished the season 3-5 in the ACC and 5-7 overall, both marked improvements from last year's season. Duke started off the season strong, winning 2 of its first four games, with convincing victories over Army and North Carolina Central. As conference play approached, the Blue Devils maintained this momentum, leading to a spectacular start to ACC play. After a tough fight in the loss against top-ten ranked Virginia Tech to open the season, Duke went on to win its next three ACC games, against North Carolina State, Maryland, and Virginia.

Duke showed further signs of growth and improvement on both the stat sheet and the scoreboard, improving in a number of areas such as pass completion percentage, points scored, points against, and special teams efficiency. As has been the trend under Coach Cutcliffe, Duke remained a predominantly passing team, allowing startgin quarterback Theddeus Lewis to throw for 3,378 yards and 20 touchdowns during the season, earning him ACC and national recognition. Among other Duke players receiving national honors, senior defensive tackle Vince Oghobaase was named as a third team All-American by Sporting News.

With the 2010 season fast approaching and Coach Cutcliffe deciding to stay at Duke, despite head coaching offers from other schools, Blue Devil fans everywhere should look foreward to another statement season.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

Coach Jolene Nagel
Record 27 W, 3 L

Duke Volleyball ended the 2009 season with its fourth straight 25-win year, and fifth straight trip the the NCAA national tournament. The team finished with an impressive 17-3 conference record, 27-6 overall. In her 11th year as head coach, Jolene Nagal coached her best season yet and the second winningest season in Duke volleybal history. Despite a first round loss to the No. 24 ranked Tennessee in the NCAA tournament, the defensive prowess and cohesive senior class of the 2009 squad made it one of the most impressive in recent years.

For the 10th consecutive year, two Blue Devils, Kellie Catanach and Rachel Moss, were named to the All-East regional team. Moss, one of the team's most prolific seniors and offensive weapons, went on to achieve first team All-American academic honors, while finishing top five in Duke Volleyball history in career kills, digs and service aces. The team will miss one of its most accomplished senior classes ever, losing seniors Christina Falcone, Rachael Moss, Sue Carls and Brittany Staffeil. The four composed Duke Volleyball's winningest class ever.

SWIM AND DIVE

Duke Swimming and Diving ended their season with both Women's and Men's teams placing 6th overall in the ACC Championships at Chapel Hill, NC. ACC Divers of the Year Nick McCory and Abby Johnston represented Team USA at the 2010 FINA/Li-Ning Diving World Series. McCory won the bronze medal in men's synchronized 10-meter diving and sixth place in the men's synchronized 3-meter springboard. Johnston won the bronze medal in the women's 3-meter synchronized diving. McCory, ACC Male Diver of the Year and ACC Male Freshman of the Year, won the 2010 NCAA national diving title and 2 ACC diving titles. Johnston, ACC Female Diver of the Year, won the one and 3-meter ACC Championship titles. As a freshman, McCory has garnered an undefeated regular season, 3 Duke records, 2 ACC titles, 2 ACC Championship records, 2 ACC conference records, 2 NCAA Zone titles, and 3-time All-America. Duke Diving head coach Drew Johansen was named USA Diving's Coach of Excellence.

WOMEN'S ROWING

ACC Regular Season Champions
ACC Tournament Champions
NCAA Tournament Champions

By early April, it was clear that Duke Men's Basketball had just concluded one of the greatest seasons in the program's prestigious and storied history. The extensive and complete list of this year's accomplishments speaks for itself: 35-5 overall record, 2-0 record versus rival North Carolina, 17-0 home record, ACC regular season champions, #1 ACC tournament seed, ACC tournament champions, #1 NCAA tournament seed, and a fourth NCAA tournament national championship.

While these incredible stats stand alone in demonstrating the historic nature of the team's accomplishments, those with ties to Duke know that the story goes much deeper. In the season where head Coach Mike Krzeyewski coached his 1000th game at Duke, the men's basketball team truly set the standard for a college basketball program. Led and coached by Coach K as a group of close friends rather than just teamates, Duke garnered the highest honors in college basketball a team laiden with Junior and Senior leaders rather than one-and-done hired guns. Lead by the Big Three of Juniors Kyle Singler, Nolan Smith, and senior John Shire, Duke presented their opponents with a more balanced attack than in previous seasons, along with the traditional suffocating defense that Duke is known for, helping lead them to a championship. Duke's big men, who provided variety to the offense and consistant rebounding, anchored the defense. The contributions of Miles and Mason Plumly and both ends of the court were bolstered by seniors Lance Thomas and Brian Zoubek, who played major roles in the team's late season and tournament success.

Although the team will miss one its most beloved senior classes in years, the influx of talent and quickness Duke is set to receive from the incoming freshmen class, including red-shirt Seth Curry, has already generated talk of repeating next year.

Duke Fencing ended their season with sophomore Becca Ward taking second place and junior Dorian Cohen taking seventh place (14-9 championship win-loss) at the NCAA Championships at Cambridge, MA. Cohen is a two-time All-America and 3-time NCAA qualifier. The team ranks 11th overall with 49 total victories. Becca Ward was Duke's first NCAA Women's Champion in 2009 and took first place at the Mid-Atlantic/ South Regionals. Freshman Anthony Lin took second place in Men's Saber and Cohen took fourth in the Men's Foil. Emily D'Agostino took sixth in women's epee. At the Temple Invitational, Becca Ward had an undefeated 9-0 showing.

WRESTLING

Coach Clar Anderson

The wrestling team ended its season 5th overall in the ACC championship and 37th overall in the NCAA championship. Duke wrestling ended its season with a blowout win against Gardner-Webb 30-11. Senior John Barone ended his year with a win-loss of 17-9 overall. Heavyweight Konrad Dudziak had an overall win-loss record of 18-2 and was undefeated 5-0 in Duals. Voris Tejada, a senior from Marlton, NJ, went 21-10 overall. Graduating seniors also include Spencer Jasper, Chris Thumen, and Ben Wales. A two-time heavyweight All-America, Dudziak ended his career with a fourth-place finish at the NCAA Championship. Dudziak also won his second ACC individual wrestling title, beating out UNC's Ziad Haddad. Dudziak was honored with the Most Valuable Athlete award and had a 79-18 record during his career at Duke, fourth all-time high in school history. Senior John Barone and sophomore Peter Terrezza were named to the NWCA All-Academic Team, with Duke ranked fourth overall on the NWCA Div. 1 All-Academic Top 30 List.

MEN'S TENNIS

Coach Ramsey Smith

Men's tennis team ended the regular season with a 16-7 record and 9-2 mark in the ACC. Duke finished second in the ACC with a 9-2 record and advanced to the finals of the ACC Tournament where they lost to No. 1 Virginia, 4-2. The nine ACC wins is the highest finish for the Blue Devils since 2006 when they were tied for first, also with a 9-2 record. Duke freshman Henrique Cunha became the first individual in ACC history to earn both the ACC Player of the Year and ACC Freshman of the Year honors. This season Cunha went 30-5 in singles and 35-5 in doubles. The duo of Cunha and Junior Reid Carleton have tied a school record for most doubles wins in a single year as a duo with 35. Carleton was also named, for the second time, to the All-ACC squad. He received his first All-ACC selection as a freshman in 2008.

Women's tennis made its 22nd appearance in the NCAA Tournament. However, Duke fell to Florida State in the ACC quarterfinals, marking the first time the Blue Devils failed to reach the semifinal round of the ACC Championships since the tournament's inception in 1986. Three Blue Devils, senior Elizabeth Plotkin and juniors Reka Zsilinszka and Ellah Nze, were selected to the Women's Tennis All-ACC Team. This season, Zsilinszka became the 18th player in Duke history to reach 100 career victories and is 109-25 for her career.

REDUCED SHAKESPEARE COMPANY

The Reduced Shakespeare Company was brought to Duke by the LiveEnt committee of DUU for the first time this year. It consisted of a three-man comedy troupe that condensed all of Shakespeare's work into short, sharp comedies. From performing Hamlet backwards, to rapping Othello, they shed a unique, witty and humorous light to both Shakespearean comedies and tragedies.

CAMERON ROCKS

N.E.R.D. WITH KID CUDI

Cameron Rocks, organized by the Major Attractions Committee of the Duke University Union, returned in 2010 after a three-year hiatus. Cameron Indoor Stadium was transformed into a concert arena, hosting hip-hop artist and Grammy nominee Kid Cudi as well as N.E.R.D., a rock hip-hop fusion band fronted by artists Pharrell Williams and Chad Hugo, that headlined the event. Tickets for Cameron Rocks were sold for $25 for students.

THE BLANKS

The Blanks, also known as Ted's band from the popular TV show 'Scrubs,' performed for the very first time at Duke. The band members, who are a quartet of friends, sang a cappela music. Their performance included an [illegible] ding the theme [illegible] tled 'Superman' [illegible] performed [illegible] ing toys. Their satirical and witty lyrics had the audience laughing through the entire performance.

BSA FASHION SHOW

The Fashion Show was part of the Black Student Alliance Invitational weekend and was performed by students from all years representing the four seasons. The show kicked off with four expiorers, who discovered well-dressed winter models and the show ended with the display of different summer attire. All proceeds went to Haiti and Chile Earthquake Relief Efforts.

AWAAZ

Awaaz, Duke's premier South Asian cultural show, is the largest student-run production on campus Sponsored by Duke Diya, this year's show had the central theme of Char and The Chutney Factory. After a dinner prior to the performance with South Asian food, Awaaz showcased performances from many student groups such as Duke Dhamaka, DBS Raas, Defining Movement, and Duke Chinese Dance. Senior Bangra this year, was the largest act of Awaaz history by bringing in 146 people on the stage of Page Auditorium. All proceeds from the show went to Duke Microfinance Leadership Initiative, which sponsors startups in the developing world.

Describe a talent or skill that you discovered or honed at college?

Being more comfortable with my own jokes. After around 30 sketch comedy shows, stand-up performances, and emceeing opportunities, being on stage is no longer horribly awkward (for me anyway, no comment on the audience).

Best piece of advice from a professor or faculty member at Duke?

You now have the means to help girls in Kenya break the cycle of poverty. Please don't forget about them.

Favorite eatery in or around Durham: OnlyBurger Truck. The sole reason I go on Twitter.

Describe a talent or skill that you discovere or honed at college?

The art of storytelling both literally, visua and musically.

3 things you've done while at Duke that yo think everyone should experience before graduating:

-Get to really know a professor and mainta that relationship for at least all 4 years of your Duke career (even better, maintain it through life).

-Find a project that you can be really passionate about and then use EVERY resou that Duke has to offer to complete it. The University has so much at your disposal (professors, libraries, professional performances, Duke conversations, grants etc

-Go to a tailgate, then rally enough to atte the football game.

If it weren't for Duke I would be:

A graduate of film school and homeless in Hollywood.

3 things you've done while at Duke that you think everyone should experience before graduating:

1. Running at sunset on the WaDuke trail
2. Attend a meditation in the basement of the Chapel
3. Befriend Grace from Grace's Cafe

I sank down into darkness and lived among the demons for a long, long time. I became one of them. But I was not saved by an innocent girl or an angel crying in heaven. I was saved by another demon, who looked on me with pity and so became human again. And because I pitied her in turn, I was allowed to become human, too.

Best piece of advice from a professor or faculty member at Duke?

Don't be afraid to see the world or things around you in different ways.

In five years I hope to:

Become a guru in my chosen industry an use the acquired knowledge to develop n entrepreneurial ventures. In addition, I pro ably would have recently finished Busines school at this point. Next, I will attempt to accumulate at least $1 million and a Lam rgini. This will be a prerequisite before tak over the world.

If it weren't for Duke I would be: someon with a very limited view of the world and limited view of my capabilities. There hav been numerous times during my four ye here when I have completely surprised myself.

If you could bequeath something from your 4 years at Duke to anyone, what would it be and to whom?

I would pass down the advice that I have learned from so many different people over my 4 years here to my swim team, who sincerely are family to me, who I care about as people and friends, and who I cannot wait to see what they accomplish.

Best piece of advice from a professor or faculty member at Duke?

If you believe in yourself, find good mentors and a support network, then you can do whatever you dream of, no matter what other people tell you. You are worth it.

If it weren't for Duke I would be: still in Texas attending college, have a much narrower perspective of the world, and not be as excited and prepared for the future!

Just be yourself because everyone else is already taken.

Best piece of advice from a professor or faculty member at Duke?

Don't number yourself to true emotion and passion, and it's ok not to follow the beaten path.

If it weren't for Duke I would be: a lot more one-dimensional, and I would never have experienced the South.

The only people for me are the mad ones, the ones who are mad to live, mad to talk, mad to be saved, desirous of everything at the same time, the ones who never yawn or say a commonplace thing, but burn, burn, burn, like fabulous yellow roman candles...
